Section 2778(c)

COUNT ONE

The SPECIAL SEPTEMBER 2014 GRAND JURY charges:

1. At times material to this indictment:

a. In furtherance of the foreign policy and security of the United States, the Arms Export Control Act, Title 22, United States Code, Section 2778, authorized the President of the United States to control the export and import of "defense articles."

The Export of Defense Articles

b. Pursuant to the authority granted in the Arms Export Control Act, the United States Department of State, Directorate of Defense Trade Controls, promulgated the International Traffic in Arms Regulations, Title 22, Code of Federal Regulations, Parts 120-130, which governed the export of defense articles. The International Traffic in Arms Regulations contained the United States

Munitions List, Title 22, Code of Federal Regulations, Section 121.1, which designated items that were defense articles.

c. Once an item was designated as a defense article on the United States Munitions List, any person seeking to export that item from the United States was required to obtain a license or written approval to do so from the Directorate of Defense Trade Controls.

d. For purposes of the International Traffic in Arms Regulations:

i. The definition of “defense articles” included any item and technical data contained within the United States Munitions List.

ii. The definition of “export” included: (1) sending and taking defense articles out of the United States in any manner, except by mere travel outside of the United States by a person whose personal knowledge includes technical data; and (2) the disclosure and transfer of technical data to a foreign person, whether in the United States or abroad.

The Import of Defense Articles

e. Under the International Traffic in Arms Regulations, the permanent import of defense articles was regulated by the United States Department of Justice, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives under the direction of the Attorney General.

f. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives promulgated regulations, Title 27, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 447, which governed the import of defense articles and contained the United States Munitions Import List, Title 27, Code of Federal Regulations, Sections 447.21 and 447.22. The United States Munitions Import List designated items that were defense articles for purposes of the import regulations.

g. Once an item was designated as a defense article on the United States Munitions Import List, any person seeking to permanently import that item into the United States was required to obtain a permit to do so from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives.

h. For purposes of the import regulations:

i. "Defense article" meant any item or technical data covered by the United States Munitions Import List.

ii. "Import" or "importation" included bringing any of the articles on the United States Munitions Import List into the United States from a foreign country, except for transactions involving items in transit or temporarily imported or exported.

i. Any person engaged in the United States in the business of manufacturing or exporting defense articles, or importing defense articles, was required to register with the Directorate of Defense Trade Controls or the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, respectively. Registration, standing alone, did not confer a right to export or import defense articles.

j. It was the policy of the United States to deny licenses, permits, and other approvals for exports and imports of defense articles destined for or originating in certain countries. This policy applied to countries with respect to which the United States maintained an arms embargo.
